Homecoming week activities ranged from the weird to the bizarre. It is the only time of year when you see Sylvia Lee and Tim Johnson walking with a banana in their mouths (top center), the sophomore class climbing all over each other to form a pyramid (far), or the senior class doing body contortions trying to win skin the snake (bottom). All the class maniacs gathered on their respective floats: senior float (left), junior float (below) and sophomore float (bottom far left). Chad Smith gets a kick out of walking with Molly Baker (center) while Angela Blau calls Mommy to take her out of the confusion.

Teachers not only did their regular classroom assignments but also doubled as other important roles to the students.

Mr. Jacobsen lends some advice to a student trying to survive the yearly required research paper (left). Coach Hall uses some of his expertise by giving the offensive line their next play (bottom left). Although most of the extracurricular activities were left for the students, two faculty members got involved by judging a contest held by Child Development classes (below). Not all of the services given to students were in the form of knowledge. A cafeteria worker (bottom) helps to sustain a student from starvation.

Pre-school sales cause pre-school campus chaos

On August 17, 18, 19, and 22, Maryvale students invaded the campus for booksales.

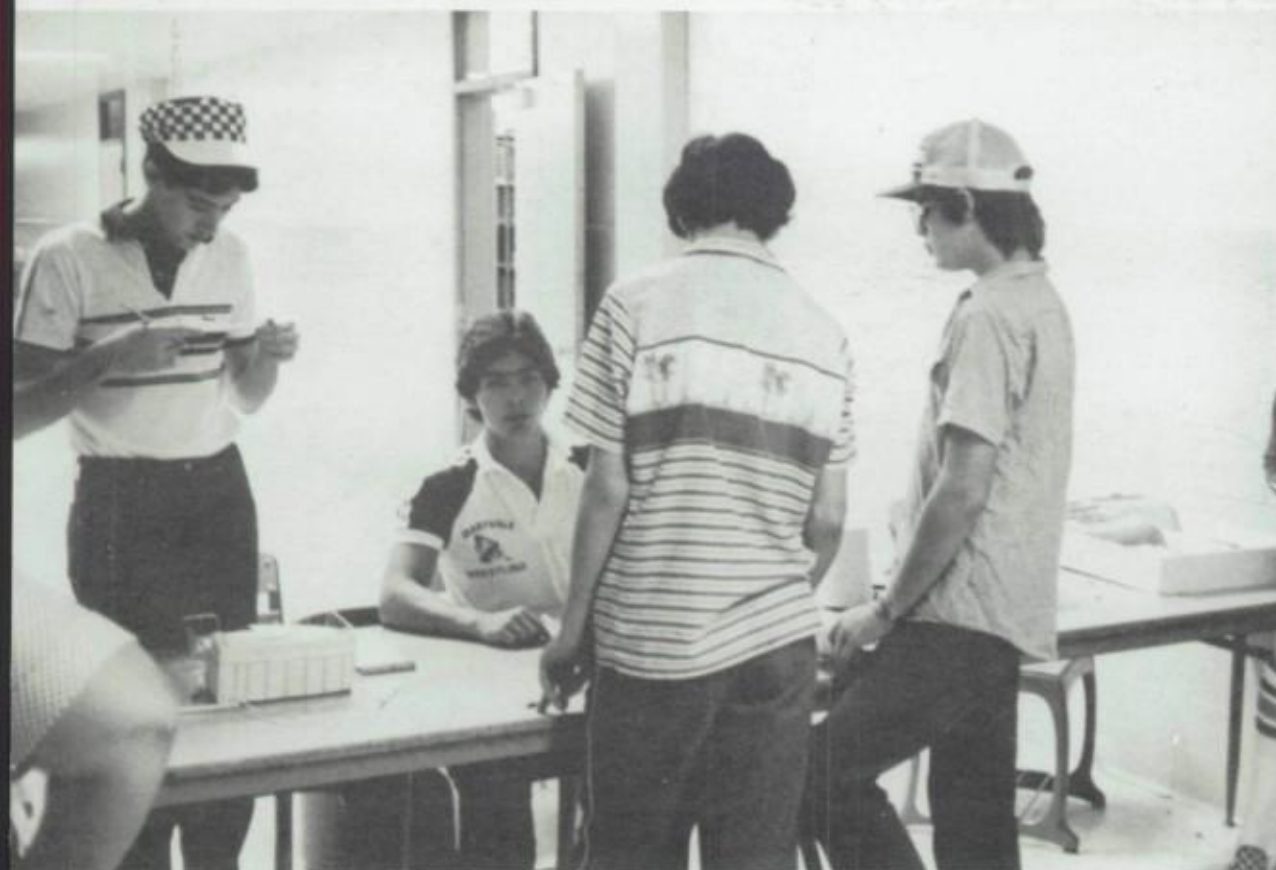

On Wednesday, the seniors strutted into the 300 building to get their books. Senility seemed to strike some seniors as, even after three years of book sales, they couldn't hunt down their books.

On Thursday, the juniors rolled out of bed and into long lines, and brought their newly acquired upperclassmen status with them. They seemed slightly less confused than the "veteran" seniors, although they did have their share of mishaps.

The sophomores found their way onto campus on Friday, trying to act as sophisticated as is humanly possible for an underclassman. The sophomores proved to be even worse than the seniors. They were unable to find their English and health books until aided by yearbook salesmen, who put up a billboard pointing them out.

Monday was "Family Day" as the freshmen brought their parents and grandparents with them, while they stumbled out of various cracks and crevices to buy their books. The bookstore staff declared Monday "Freshman day" so that they could use the weekend to attempt to prepare for "D-Day". This, of course, is an impossible task.

In the beginning, there was booksales: and it was chaos. This was evidenced by assorted sophomores (far lower left), as they went back down the hallway again looking for health books. Another testament to the process' organization was the contentment of the student workers. Randy Munoz (top center), was very happy in his role as locker assigner and Chris Fiscus (left), was equally complecent and amused while selling yearbooks. This continued through the first six days. On the seventh day, a voice said, "Let there be registration," and there was registration and it was also chaos as anyone there (top left and center). will testify.

Half-hour hours prove acceptable to MHS masses

Even though there were only 37 minutes for lunch this year, students still had time to follow the same old routines.

Those students who were rich, had kind parents, knew someone, or were experts in bank robbery could drive off campus for lunch. Such fast-food emporiums as Jack-in-the-Box, Taco Delight and the old mainstay, McDonald's were just a few of the places waiting to serve the drivers who could get through the construction.

For those remaining pupils, there was the standardized nutrition of the cafeteria and snack bar. However, there were always those that flushed both choices and headed to Mom's Bar & Grill.

Lunchtime was a busy time around the picnic tables.

Reyes, Baker selected Homecoming King, Queen

This year's Homecoming activities brought more than their fair share of crazy antics and memorable experiences.

The Powder Puff football game, male poms, lunchtime activities, Almost Anything Goes IV, and the annual homecoming parade were among the events that brought out the "Abstract" side of many students.

Student government worked hard to promote school spirit during Homecoming week. Lunchtime activities, which proved to be a helpful break from classes, was an example of this.

In the Powder Puff game, the underclass team defeated the upperclass, 14-12. The male poms strutted their stuff and cheered the underclassmen to victory. As the powder Puff teams were cheered on by the male poms, the poms were cheered on by antagonistic friends in the stands.

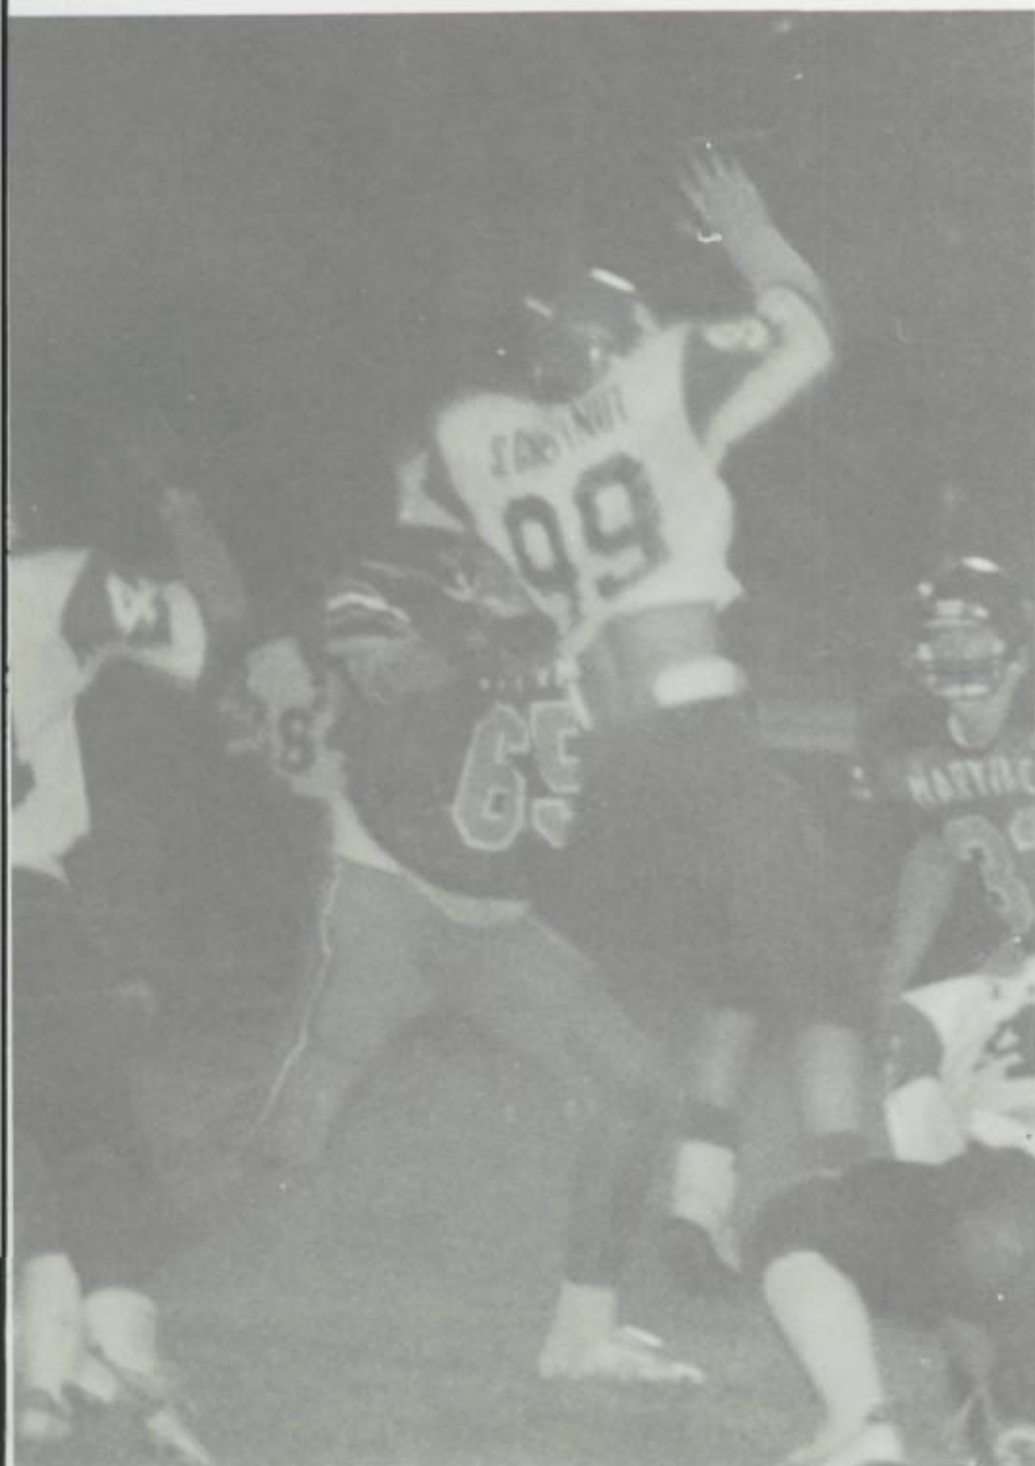

The fourth annual Almost Anything Goes featured such memorable events as "Skin the Snake", Volkswagon push, ten legged race, and the forward-backward race.

The Homecoming parade featured the class floats, marching band, poms and cheers, powder puff football team, varsity football team, and ROTC cadets. The parade led into the stadium for a pep rally, featuring the band, the pom line and, of course, the male poms.

The assembly was topped off with the powder puff game, where the male poms did their routine.

In the class competition of Homecoming week, the junior class won by a large margin. They were then followed by the seniors. The sophomores picked up third place and left last place to the freshmen.

One of the many activities that entertains students during Homecoming week was the annual parade where the class floats are featured. This year's winner was the junior entry (bottom left).

Jackson, Boldt play major roles in Christie play

The Maryvale Thespians produced their first play of the year on the 3rd, 4th, and 5th of November, "The Mousetrap" a "whodunnit" mystery by Agatha Christie, which has a very shocking ending. The audience seemed to enjoy themselves, while chuckles and comments were exchanged.

The play took place at a manor house in Scotland where a group of strangers are stranded in a boarding house during a snow storm.

The set was very cleverly portrayed with its rich set of Victorian furniture donated by the Big Tin Shed, and its lighted window, where silhouettes could be seen murdering each other.

Jon Jackson played the role of Detective Trotter a character that slowly built up a climax, only to reveal himself. Mike Boldt portrayed a rather bizarre, yet humourous male, whose sexual desires were questionable. Mark Mulcahy played his role of the innkeeper with tremendous character, while Janna Hodges played the role of the innkeeper's wife.

The rest of the cast included Janette Fitch portrayed Mrs. Boye, Charles Cambell as Major Mercalf, Sylvia Diag as Mrs. Casewell, and Marcus Brown as Mr. Paravicini.

Charles Cambell portrays the character of Major Metcalf who later turns out to be a police detective (center). Janna Hodges as the innkeeper's wife, Mark Mulcahy as the inn's owner, and Mike Boldt as Christopher play out a jealousy scene (top). Janna Hodges is portraying a person who becomes very scared as the ending draws near (left). Janna Hodges is comforting Mike Boldt in this scene (bottom). Janna Hodges and Mark Mulcahy in a quaint love scene (below).

AAG culminates Class Competition for Homecoming

One of the biggest Homecoming Week activities was "Almost Anything Goes."

One highlight was "Skin the Snake," where participants line up, join hands between the legs and try to lay down. If this wasn't enough, they then had to attempt to get back up without letting go of hands.

Another was the "Frontward/Backward Race," where two people stand next to each other, facing opposite directions, and compete with others in the same positions to reach the finish line first.

With other events such as "The Volkswagen Push," the "Piggyback Ride," and the "Ten-legged Race," it proved to be an exciting evening.

MUSIC

"Color By Numbers," "Metal Health", "Seven and the Ragged Tiger", and "Pyromania" were just a few of the year's biggest albums by new groups, like Culture Club, Quiet Riot, Duran Duran, and Def Leppard.

Other new trends in music were the new sounds in hits from old artists. Country stars Kenny Rogers and Dolly Parton hit the top of the pop charts with their duet "Islands in the Stream". Super Rockers Van Halen added Synthesizers to their music in their LP, "1984". And last, but not least, was the English/Australian led by The Police and Men at Work.

But of course, 1984 could best be described by the word: "THRILLER". "Thriller" was the super-album belonging to the dancin prancin music king of Gary, Indiana, Michael Jackson.

Jackson and "Thriller" both broke music records. Jackson won eight Grammys and an equal number of American Music Awards, and his album sold more copies than any other record in history.

"Flashdance" did more than just get America to appreciate dancing. It got them to rip the sleeves and neck out of their clothes. The "Flashdance shirts", as they became known, were very popular among members of the female gender in general and to students of dance in particular.

Another trend in fashion also agreed with the "take it off" theory. This trend was the sleeveless variety of apparel. This shirt was popularized by the resident "surfers" of Maryvale. They also made an end-of-the-year push to put parachute pants on the map, but didn't quite gain the attention commanded by the Flashdances.

FASHION

ENTERTAINMENT

The cinema scene was extremely radical in 1984. You probably either liked a movie or hated it. The choices ranged from comedies like Mr. Mom and Porky's II, to dance-dramas like Flashdance and Stayin' Alive. Other flicks that debuted in '84 were Sudden Impact, Two of a Kind, Lassiter, Unfaithfully Yours, The Right Stuff and maybe the world's most awaited sequel, Return of the Jedi.

COSTS

In twenty years, you can look at this list and remember when...

- A gallon of gas was $.99
- A Big Mac was $1.35
- A movie ticket was $4.50
- A California Cooler was $1.00
- A large cheese pizza was $8.00
- A large Peter Piper cheese pizza was $4.25
- A can of Coke was $.50
- The federal deficit was $1.4 trillion

NEWS

Figuring prominently in the news was the U.S. Marines in Lebanon. As part of a multi-national peacekeeping force, the marines spent over four months guarding the Beirut airport. Also in the news was the Russian attack on Korean Airlines flight 007 over the Sea of Japan. But the show stopper of the year was the XII Winter Olympics in Sarajevo, Yugoslavia, where the Americans won four gold and four silver medals.

Dance classes perform talents in mini-concert

What has 70 legs, wears tights, and lives above the gym? The performance dance classes.

Under the direction of Miss Blanche Berry and Mrs. Lorna Ziemer, the dancers practiced the specifics of dance needed to perfect their art.

The dancers' performances included their annual mini-concert (held after school because of the shortened lunch hours) and their big concerts in the Fall and Spring.

In these concerts the dancers perform different types of dances including modern, abstract, jazz, comedy, and lyrical. In preparations for these concerts they elect officers, choose their design for posters, programs and shirts, and vote for their title. During this preparation time they choreograph their own dances and hold auditions.

MHS celebrates 21st birthday with a short day

Maryvale celebrated its twenty-first birthday, Saturday February fourth, all by itself. The day before, students and faculty observed it with a carnival.

The carnival featured various booths, including such games as the wheel of fortune, dart toss, softball throw, and a dunk tank. The highlight of the afternoon occurred when Dave Pratt, of KUPD, arrived to sit in the dunk tank. Coach Hall, senior Larry Contreras, and junior Lori Benjamin also took turns being the brunt of the participant's frustrations.

The festivities also included a twenty-five foot birthday cake, a raffle for a walkman stereo, and a D.J. who made sure that the entertainment kept rolling.

The mammoth birthday cake was a collaboration of many different kinds of cake which were brought in by students. The cakes were then placed together and iced in white frosting. This proved to be very interesting, because students had no idea what kind of cake they were eating until they took a bite. Many students journeyed into line several times to get a sample of the cake.

Noon activities generate spirit and excitement

Lunchtime activities ranged from those planned by Student Government to ones unplanned and thought up by the students themselves. Both kinds drew many who laughed at the antics of fellow students, and both seemed to create fun and school spirit. Some of the activities were "Sit-Down Volleyball," "Do You Like Your Neighbor?" "Pass the Marshmallow," "Musical Chairs," "If You Love Me You'd Smile," and races. Hot Wheels racing and car crashing were some of the favorite activities planned by students. In the final analysis, it seems lunch time activities were very successful this year with students.

Lunchtime activities provide interesting moments, as students replace thoughts of exams, homework, and tardies with craziness and antics.

As Tim Johnson and Tim Feller revert back to their childhood during lunch hour, some students prefer to keep their distance.

Two-inch pipe causes school's early dismissal

Over 2,000 students and approximately 200 staff members and administrators were evacuated from the Maryvale campus on Wednesday, February 1 when a two-inch gas main under 59th avenue was severed in front of the school.

The accident occurred when construction crews working on a drainage system ripped up the line with a piece of heavy digging equipment.

School officials first learned of the situation at 11:20 a.m. By 12:41 p.m., four engines, two ladders, a mobile command post and a Deputy Fire Chief from the Phoenix and Glendale Fire Departments and more than 15 police officers were on the scene, and Principal Wellesly Goodwin sounded the alarm to evacuate the school.

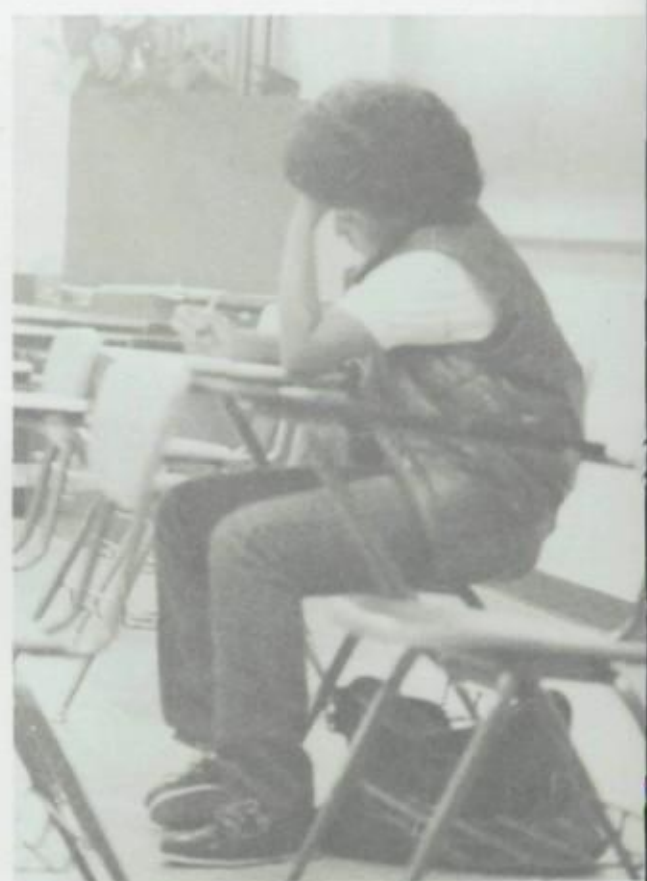

A tense 40 minutes passed before there was any change. Then, at 1:20 p.m., Goodwin sounded the all clear and released students to go home for the day. As Goodwin said, "they were in no mood to study anyway."

Maryvale pupils reserve time for academic study

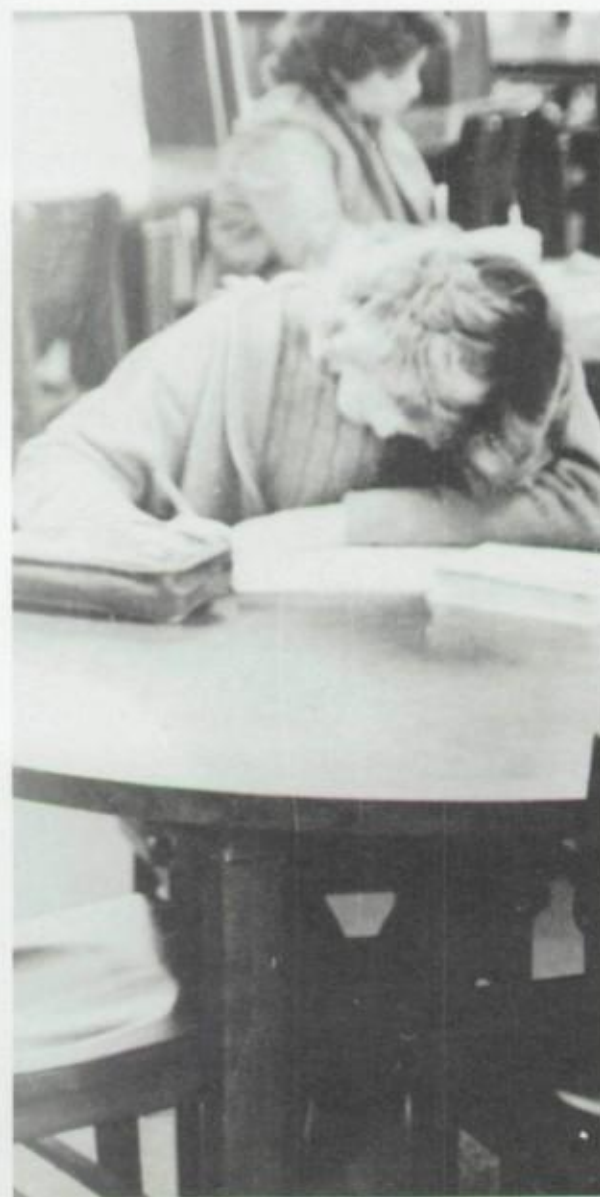

Studying to the students of Maryvale is a top priority. Whether it's for the mid-term, final exam, or just for a weekly quiz. Quiet places and good study habits are some of the things that the studious people at Maryvale often dream about. Studying with our friends can be real fun. Laughing and joking about who is going to pass the test with flying colors, and who will be praying the night before hoping they will at least make a 60% are in the back of the mind. After the year is finally over, students think back on those times of either spending study time with best friends, or alone with a book in a favorite studying spot.

Maryvale cut Alhambra's lead to 13-20, when Jones scored from five yards out.

Maryvale lost their third straight game and hopes for a playoff berth, when they were defeated 21-28 by the Camelback Spartans.

Tony Jones scored twice in the first half on a 34-yard run and on a 26-yard pass reception, to give Maryvale a 14-7 halftime lead.

Camelback tied the score at 14 when they returned the second half kickoff 70 plus yards for the score.

The team ended the year by defeating South Mountain for the second time, 36-22.

South shut out the Panthers 15-0 in the first quarter, scoring two touchdowns in the first six minutes of the game.

Maryvale scored their first touchdown of the game in the second quarter when quarterback Mike Norby threw a 27-yard touchdown pass to running-back Tony Jones. Jones scored the two-point conversion, making the score 8-15.

The Panthers scored again less than a minute later, when running-back Ron Wallis ran 27 yards for the touchdown.

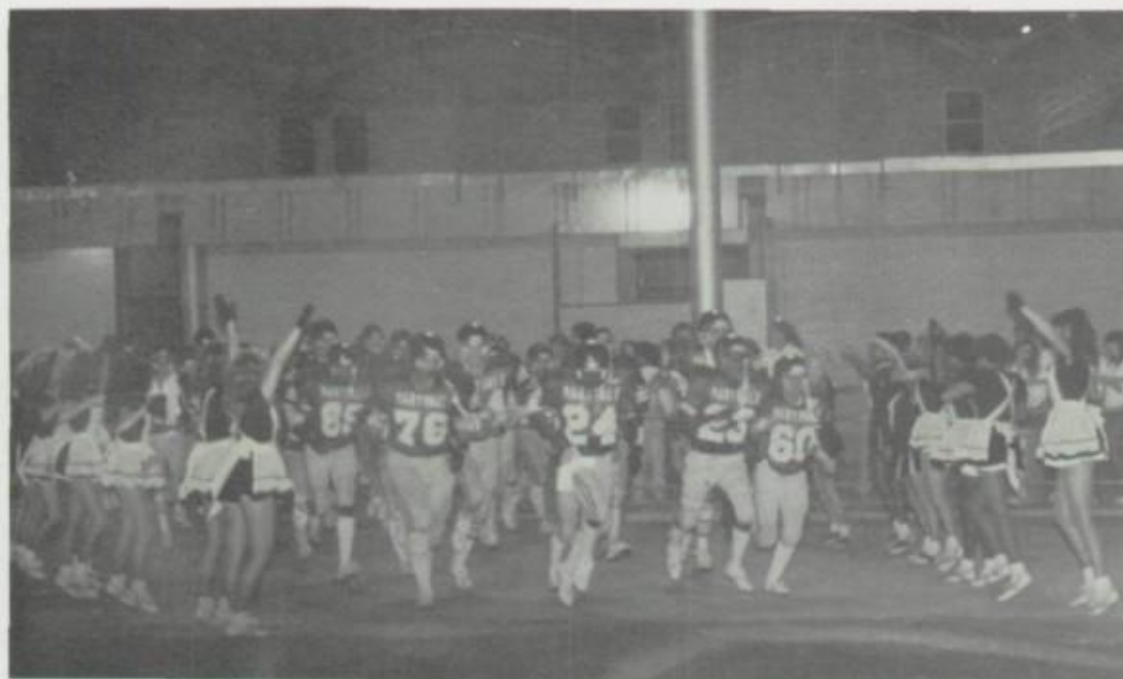

South scored late in the half on a 61-yard pass play, and led 22-15 at halftime.

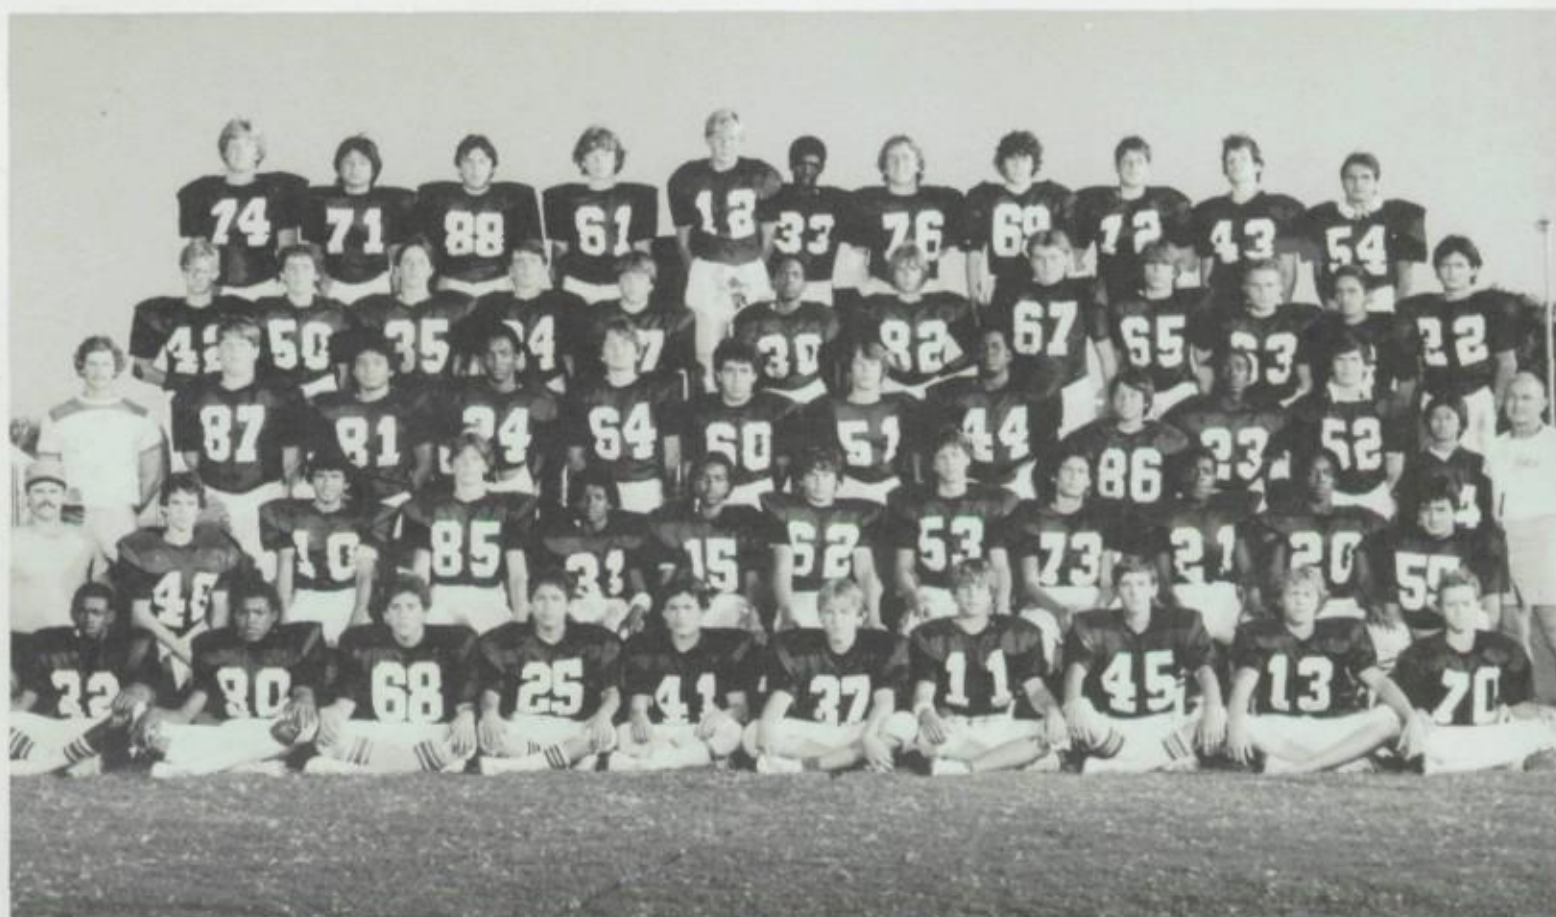

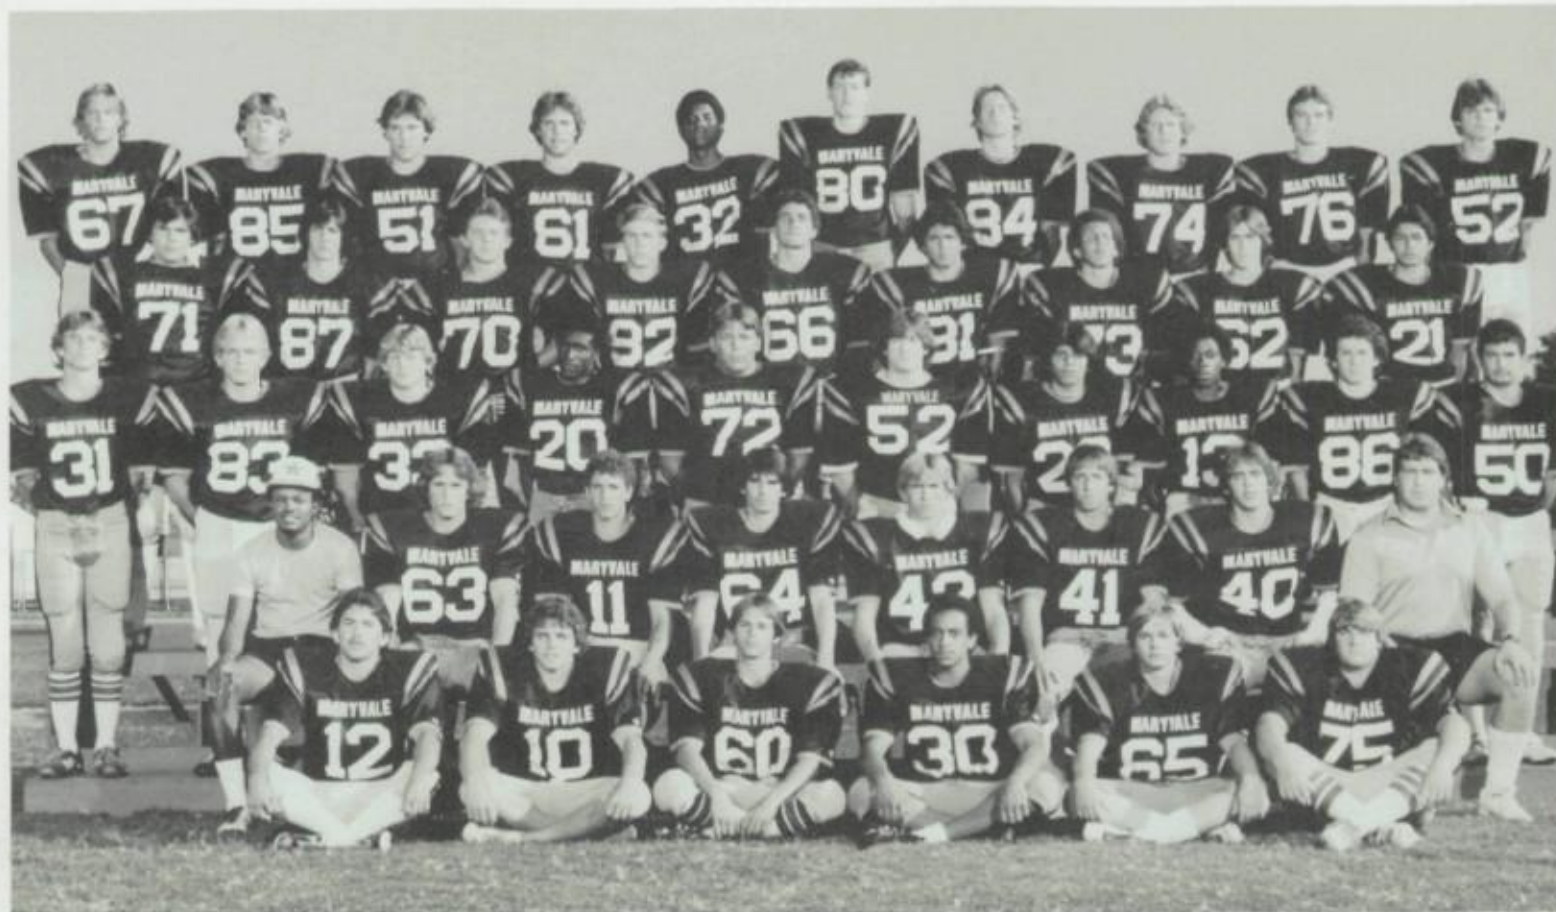

Jones scored on a 52-yard run, and Wallis scored on runs of 71 and 19 yards, to lead the Panthers to a 36-22 comeback victory.

Frosh football share winning year with J.V.

Both the Freshman and Junior Varsity football teams had winning seasons with 6-2 and 6-1 records respectively.

The Freshman opened their season against Central. It was the first of their two losses, with the second following two games later against Alhambra. But that was all, as the Panthers went on to beat the rest of their opponents.

The Junior Varsity Team also had a good season with a slow start. The Panthers' only loss came in their first game against Horizon.

The J.V. kept on winning right up to the end of the season with their win over arch rival Trevor Browne.

Golf team finishes sixth in Divisional Tournament

Coach Hicks watched his teed-off golfers swing into a successful season, led by returning lettermen Bruce Ostrander, Dwane Traynor, Todd Pearson, Mark Harold, and Joe Roe. He quotes "We had an excellent start and a good dual meet record, but we faltered at the end and in the tournament." The team finished the season with nineteen wins and seven losses, placing them fifth in the Camelback Invitational Tournament; at the Divisional Tournament, they placed sixth.

Cross Country boys had no wins and four losses in dual meets and placed twelveth in Division.

Cross Country is divided into six sections: dual meets, three-way meets, four-way meets, Metro Division Meet, State Meet, and an Individual Meet at Thunderbird Invitational. The average course for girls is two miles and the average for boys is three miles.

Varsity Squad finishes season with 8-8 record

A successful volleyball season has come to be expected at Maryvale, and this year was no exception. The varsity, junior varsity, and Freshman teams all had winning seasons.

The Varsity volleyball team finished the year with an 8-8 record, which included a 2-1 record at the Greenway Tournament. Seniors Carol Vollmer, Toni Ramirez, and Bicki Smith returned to give the team valuable experience and leadership.

The J.V. squad, coached by Linda Grayhack, had an excellent season, finishing with an 11-1 record. Outstanding players were Harla Surrent, Juanita Barrientos, Tina Holm, Marsha Henley, and Gina Vaca.

The Freshman team, coached by Osborne Shackelford, finished the season with an 11-5 record, and should ensure successful teams in the coming years.

The Varsity squad used intense concentration (below) and vicious hits, such as the one by Rhonda Williams, (bottom) to defeat their opponents.

Jacob's athletes complete season with 2-19 record

Coach Jacobs and the Varsity basketball team faced some rough times this year. One of the two games they won during the year was against rival Trevor Browne. However, one of the nineteen loses was also to Trevor Browne. It turned out to be Trevor's first win in about forty games. The JV squad coached by Mike Anderson didn't do much better. They finished the year with two wins and thirteen loses. Coach Osborne Shackelford and the freshman team had the best season out of Maryvale's three teams. They finished the season with eleven wins and six loses.

Tracksters strive to maintain title of State Champs

This year's Varsity track team has but one goal this year: to maintain the AAA state track title. Even though they lost some key people to graduation last year, Coach Arabia Jones still has plenty of talent left to work with. Since last year's JV team did so well, a lot of people moved up to perform at the Varsity level. Coach Jones was quite pleased with the team's outstanding performance when they romped Camelback in the opening meet of the season. He is also very pleased with this year's 400-meter relay team. (Last year's team was greatly responsible for the state title). Consisting of veteran Mark Champion, and newcomers Keith Kealer, Antwon Aldrige, and Van Aldrige, the relay team may just well bring another state title to Maryvale.

Jones, Schuster lead tracksters to opener wins

The girl's track team opened their season on a familiar note: They rolled over their opponent, Camelback. It is getting to be a Maryvale tradition for the girl's track team to win the AAA State girls track title. Coach Schuster is anticipating keeping up the tradition for the third straight year. With many returning members and lots of talented newcomers, the team is upholding its superiority among the competition.

Varsity, J.V. and Frosh wrestle to winning records

Maryvale's varsity wrestling team has ended a successful year with an encouraging record of 7-2-1. Though the teams season was not as dramatic as in previous years, Coach Tom Tucker said that they had a good season overall.

At the Divisionals nine wrestlers placed, which, was more than any other school. These were Chris Hoebee, Ron Wallis, Randy Munoz, Tony Nolan, Steve Lopez, and Will Polenske.

One wrestler who had an outstanding season was Chris Hoebee. With a personal record of 26-4, Hoebee had more wins than almost any other wrestler in Maryvale history.

Also finishing the season with impressive records were the J.V. and Frosh teams. Both teams finished with a 9-1 record.

Deadline delirium serious, but not deadly

This year's yearbook staff was the most unstable group on Maryvale's campus.

As Editor, it was Patti Leggin's job to make sure the yearbook came out. Also, by virtue of her position, Patti had to control the staff. This was a delicate job, because it required keeping their heads out of the clouds without letting them sink too far into the gutter.

One of Patti's biggest problems was Randy Leighty. This was Randy's fourth year on the staff, but he wasn't much help after semester. He just sat at this desk and mumbled something about "Earlquituatingretirement." Also making big news in the Publication's room was the mid-year graduation of advisor Earl Stinson. Earl had been at Maryvale since 1964 and just earned enough credits to graduate in January. Rumors now have it that he is running the Teacher's Lounge in Payson.

Assuming Mr. Stinson's varied duties was a freshman, Mary Beth Reed. Ms. Reed proved to adapt quite well to her new surroundings when she kept insisting that Fort Wayne, Indiana was in Boston.

Also adding to Patti's headaches was the

C,C,C and CC.C. Club. The first two C's were Chrisses; Fiscus and Cobos, and the other two were Craig Tellez and Chuck Vardaman. The last two C's are left to the imagination. It should be noted, however, that the founder of the club, Tom Price was unable to attend any of the meetings. Tom had problems escaping the "Computer-induced mental collapse" ward at Camelback Hospital for such things.

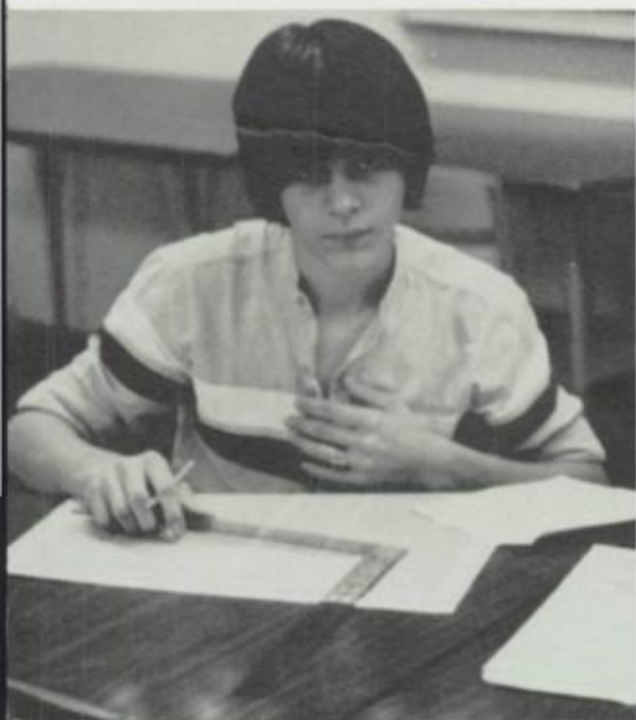

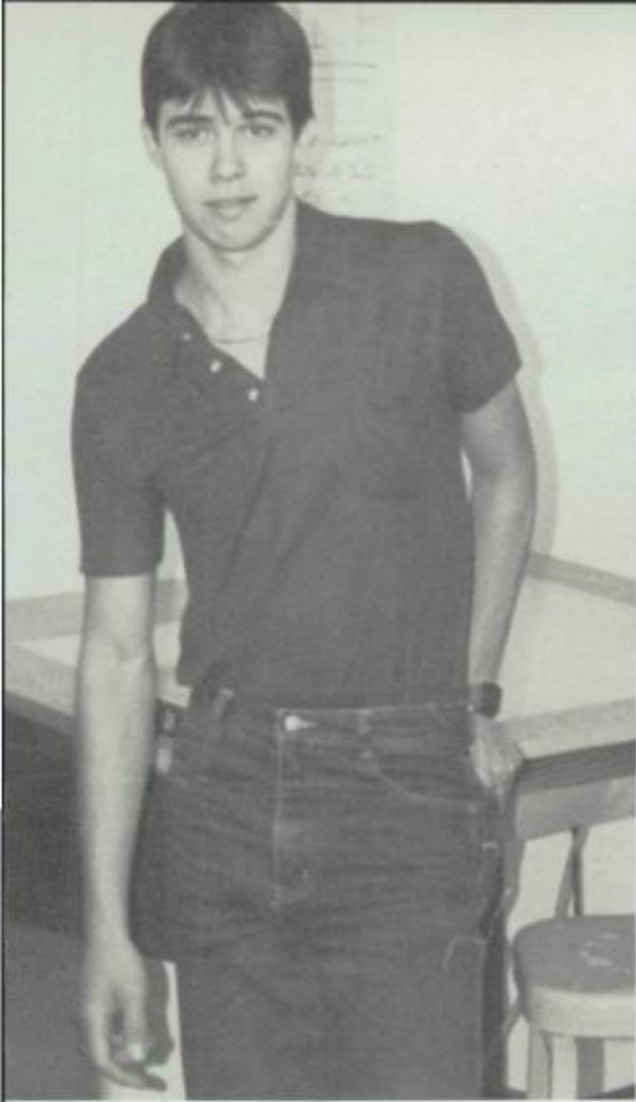

Not all staffers were a problem, however. Two year member Suzi Woods did exceptionally well. Unfortunately, all she did was make snack bar runs.

Rounding out Pub's menagerie were assorted newcomers. Among them was Babette Finley, a gift from Jr. High. Babette replaced her brother, Brent, by teleporting from the dark room to the typewriter. Another new staffer, Barbara Morris, filled the new position of "Executive Secretary to the Executive Editor's Yearbook Editor; a job that was more involved than the name suggests.

The remaining staff novices entered at the semester. These were Alton "Mr. T" Jones, and staff stud, Keith Kealer.

Yearbook staff: Craig Tellez, Mark Champion, Chris Cobos (invisible), Barbara Morris, Babette Finley, Chuck Vardaman (invisible), Keith Kealer, Chris Fiscus, Al Jones, Randy Leighty (being lazy), Suzi Woods (invisible), Patti Leggin, Tom Price.

Between the times the staff was busy not doing anything, they took the time off to work a little. David Mastrangelo (right) was part of the staff until one day a group of terrorists kidnapped him. He hasn't been seen since. Rumors have it that Chris Cobos (top center) paid good money to get rid of David. This was the first year the staff was able to afford a full time person to make snack bar runs, Suzi Woods (bottom center), and someone to keep Patti Leggin in line (left center). Unfortunately, no one was able to keep Tom Price from attacking every female that entered Room 408 (right center). If you happened to be a guy that walked in, or a female that got in without being attacked, you would probably find everyone standing around looking disgusted (top right), or Randy Leighty casually trying to ignore everything (bottom right).

Editor's mono causes distress to wary staffers

Despite a switch of advisers, a strange outbreak of mono, and the efforts of several staffers, the newspaper staff managed to have a productive year.

The newspaper staff looked more like a group of Barnum & Bailey rejects as the year progressed. Senioritis quickly gave way to junioritis, which was followed by sophomoreitis, not to be outdone by freshmanitis.

Once the majority of reporters realized the consequences of missed deadlines, however, stories suddenly began appearing.

After long hours of staring at the light table, editor Chris Fiscus was transformed into a relative of Mr. T and could be seen frolicking around in a leopard skin robe.

When Assistant Editor Gina Simpson had completed her work, she kept everyone informed of the latest gossip (right).

Assistant editor Gina Simpson was then forced to suppress him with the threat of not turning in any more stories. She spent the remainder of her time keeping the staff laughing with her annual panthers and various graphics.

Shannon Mahoney and Steve Ramsey did a commendable job in the advertising department, and had awards been handed out, they would have been sure to win the "two left feet" and "Messy Marvin's brother" awards, respectively. Mike Boldt would surely have been another Michael Jackson, brining in awards for his creative excuses for missing deadlines. His "shalome" could be heard echoing through the room long after deadline.

All in all, the panther Tracks staff was a very colorful and entertaining group who enjoyed their work and should be commended.

Student officers strive to liven school activities

This year, Student Government worked hard to promote school spirit and keep students entertained.

They kept busy during Homecoming week by arranging Almost Anything Goes IV, the float competition, Homecoming parade, lunchtime activities, the Homecoming dance, and the class competition.

Aside from their other duties, the Student Government also ran the carnival celebrating Maryvale's 21st birthday, the Christmas Formal, the Sweetheart dance, and the Prom.

Baker, O'Donnell lead new Poms in routines, dances

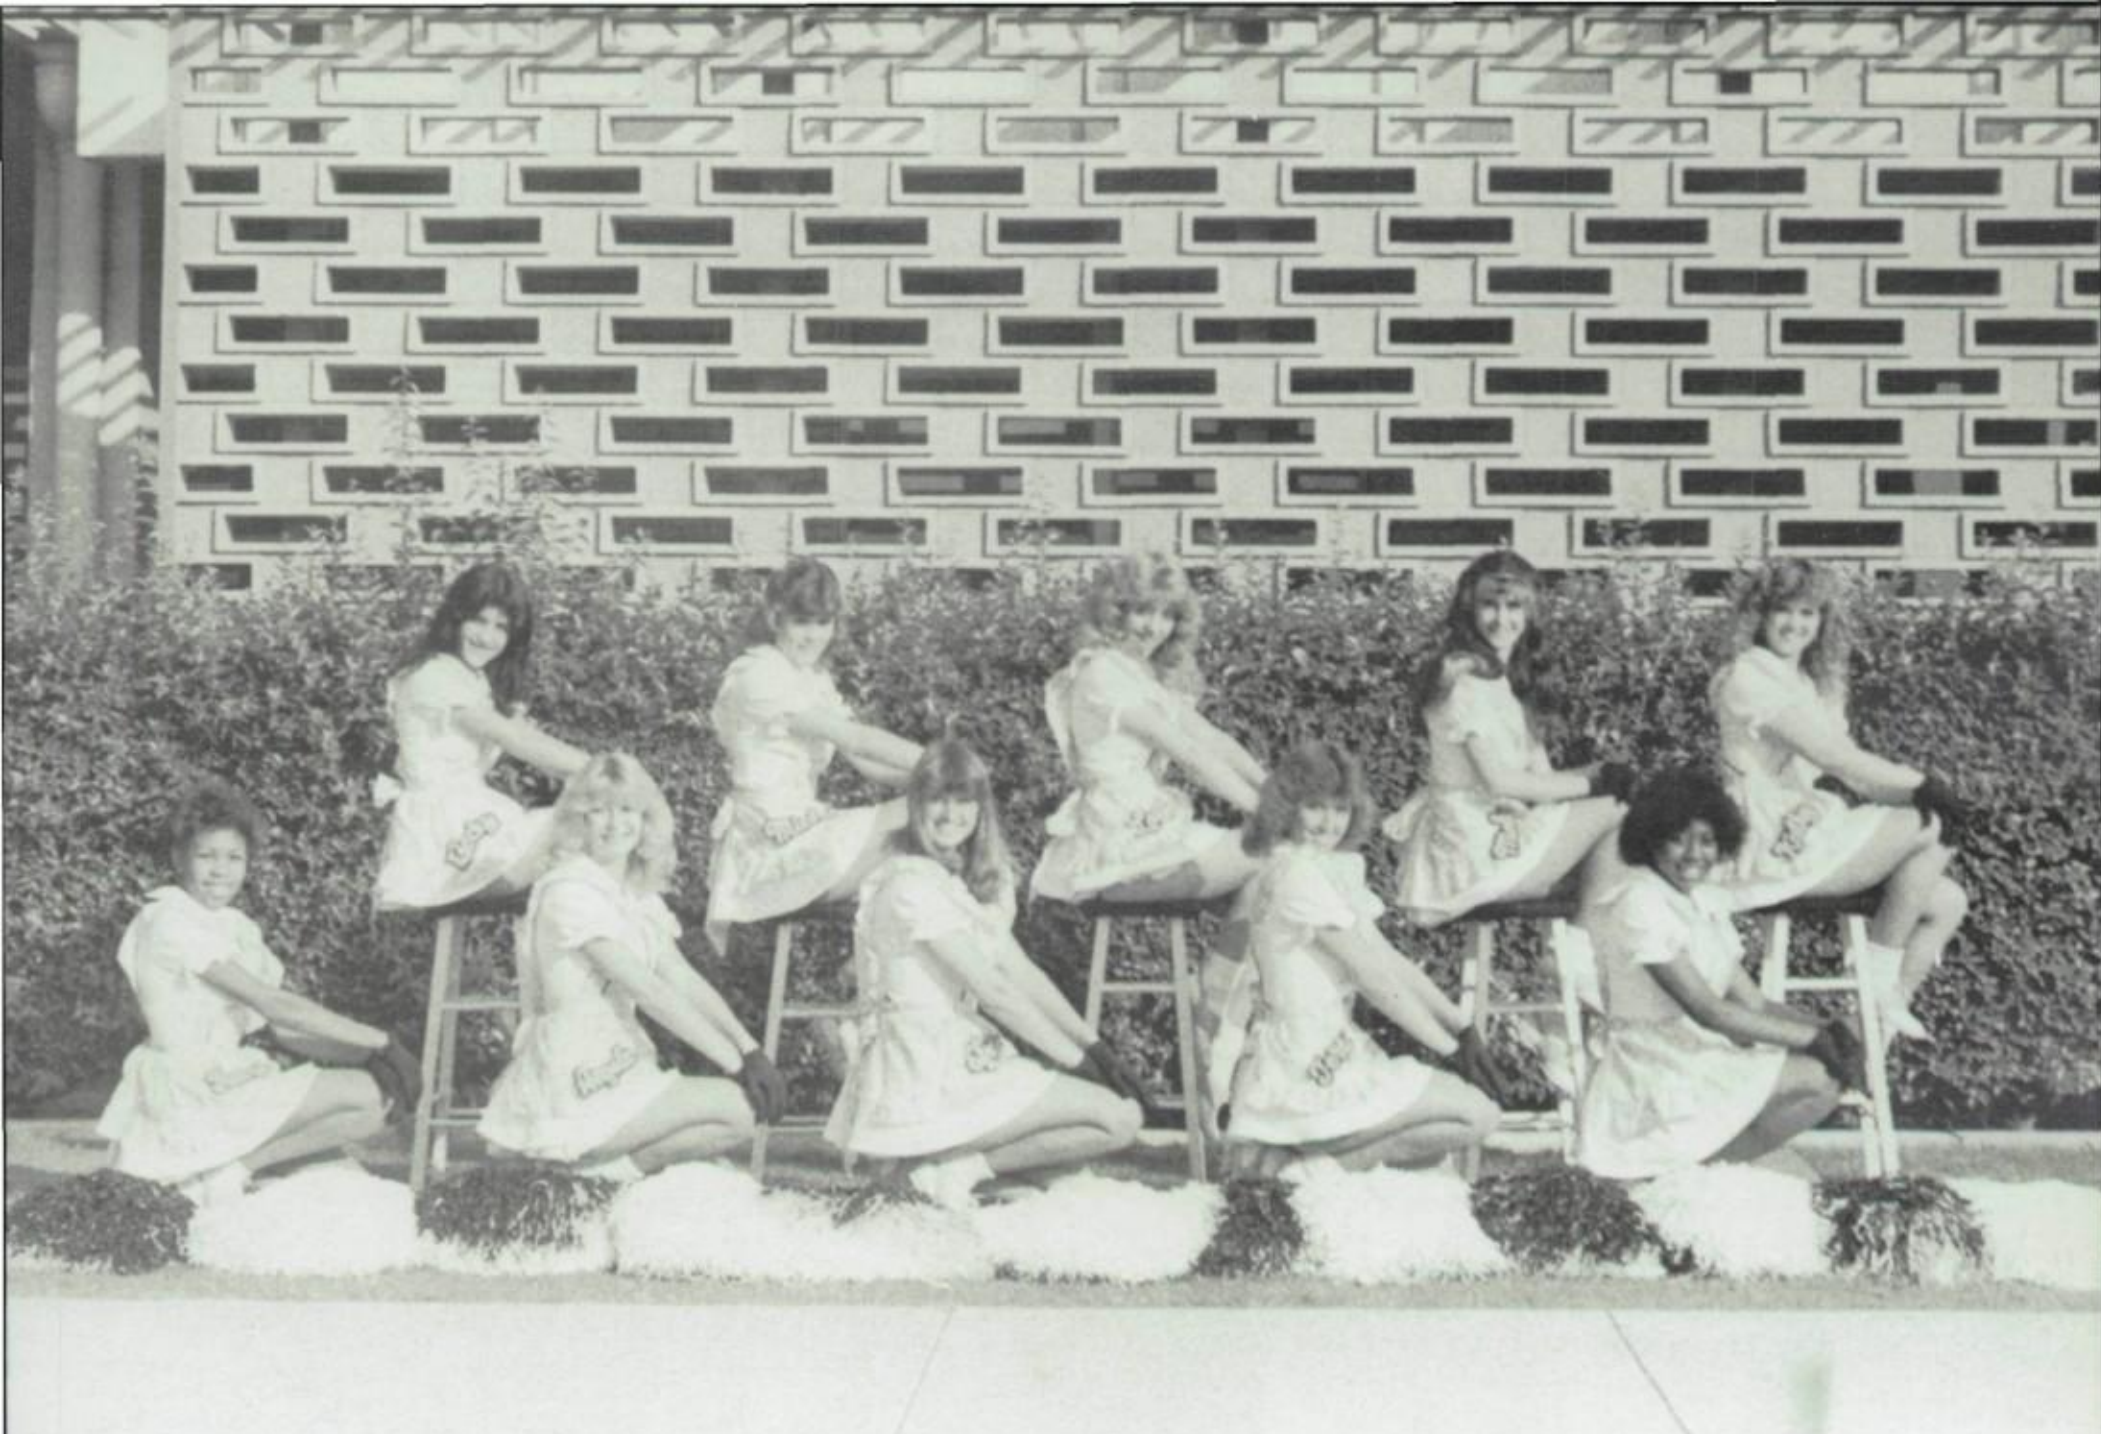

This year's pom line was young in experience, but they more than made up for it in talent.

The only two returning kickers, Captain Molly Baker and Kathy O'Donnell, managed to weld the line together into a ten girl dancing machine.

As per usual, the poms made appearances at assembles and games, and were just what the crowd needed during losing half times.

Cheers promote vitality through nimble routines

One of the more spastic groups on campus, the Cheers, changed their move this year.

The Maryvale "Rah-Rahs", as they became, could always be found during games and assemblies doing cheer things like making pyramids or one of their pre-planned spirit raisers.

Under the leadership of sponsor Mrs. Rote and Captain Denise Murray, the Cheers were always there to give our team a well needed lift.

Ambitious band receives highest award in years

The band concluded a super season (which included their best rating in over six years) with a crazy show in which the 21 seniors dressed up in strange costumes and ALL crammed into Mike Silvia's Lincoln Continental. After a season full of long hours and lots of yelling (which paid off), Drum Major Tom Price does his final salute in Vuarneys and a leopard skin robe (top left). Keith Kealer, Maryvale's 1st trombone for four years, took the opportunity to unveil himself as Captain Quaa-lude (middle). Before all the fun however, the band did their "normal" show, with top percussionist Chris Fiscus in a state of total concentration. (far right) as Tom Price and the drum line give a salute to the students of Maryvale (right).

For the first time in recent years, the Panther Band had the same director for two years in a row, Mr. Thomas Battista. Battista transferred to Maryvale from East last year to become the sixth director in five years.

The band's main activity was to entertain spectators at the half-time of football games. All the hours of practice they put in paid off as their half-time shows were quite spectacular. The band also participated at the pep assemblies, and marched in the homecoming parade.

Although a Panther Tracks survey voted the band to have had the worst concert of 1983, in actuality the marching band was one of Maryvale's best in several years. Instructed by Drum Major Tom Price, the band competed at ASU Band Day where they received their best rating in over six years: a 2+. Although they barely missed a perfect rating of "1", the members of the band have good reason to be proud of their accomplishment.

Principal lives through change of chief aides

In his second year at Maryvale, Principal Wellesley C. Goodwin initiated many of the changes the wind is blamed for, but one of the biggest changes, the one in secretaries, was thrust upon him when Mrs. Shirley Feuersanger retired and Mrs. Jean Perry replaced her.

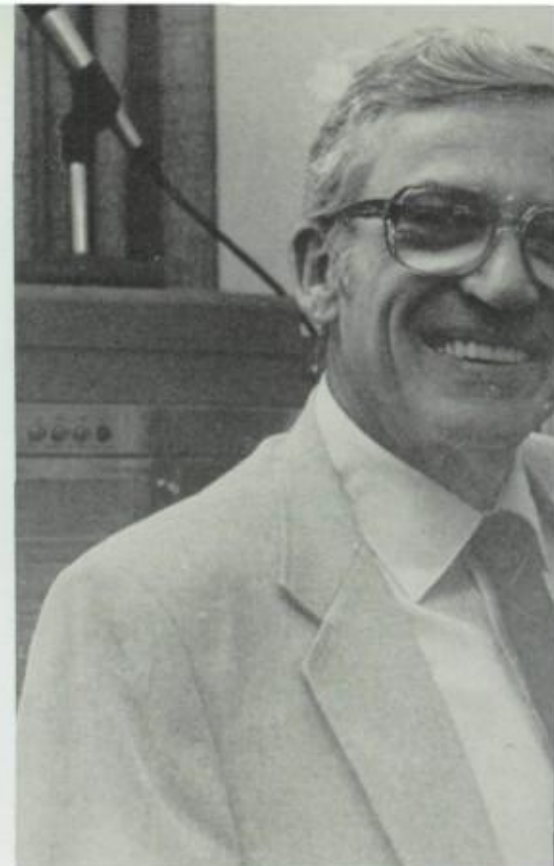

Although Mrs. Feuersanger was secretary to the principal from its opening until last summer and, as Mr. Goodwin said, "was a tremendous asset in the office," Mrs. Perry filled in very capably and the school year went smoothly.

Mr. Goodwin could often be seen roaming the halls of Maryvale, talking to students and helping hurry them to classes. He is credited with bringing about a shorter lunch and school day schedule. He also felt that students should be in class as much as possible which brought about the voluntary assembly period and the after-school pep rallies.

In his opening speech to faculty members, Goodwin called for building Maryvale as an "island of excellence." He later appointed a faculty committee to achieve that purpose.

A thorough man, Mr. Goodwin checks out everything around campus. His secretaries, Mrs. Shirley Feuersanger, until July, and Mrs. Jean Perry helped keep the school going.

Thoreen returns to replace Smith in administration

Instead of winds of change, in the activities office, it was more like a game of musical chairs.

Mrs. Dorann Thoreen, who moved back to English last year to make room for Mr. Wendall Smith, moved back to the activities office when Mr. Smith retired. Understand?

Anyway, Mrs. Thoreen was back taking charge of activities and discipline. Mr. Martin Ulloa never left taking charge of athletics and discipline, while, Dr. Howard Shumate, who also never left, was back in charge of attendance and registration.

Gale force winds blows as faculty takes retirement

If they were the winds of change in other areas of the school, they became a full-fledged gale when they reached the faculty and administration.

When the Arizona State Retirement System changed a few rules, many of Maryvale's "mature faculty" opted for early retirement both at the end of the 1983 school year and at Christmas break, although most of the latter returned to finish the semester under the district's early retirement plan.

These retirements led to the biggest turnover in faculty and staff since 1973 when Trevor Browne opened and Maryvale escaped from double sessions.

One of the most unexpected and noticeable of the retirements was that of Mrs. Shirley Feuersanger. Mrs. Feuersanger had made Maryvale run like a well-oiled machine since it opened in 1963. She was replaced by Mrs. Jean Perry who makes Maryvale run like a well-oiled machine.

The most unexpected and noticeable change, however, was brought about by the death in July of long-time Math Teacher Phyllis Hruza. Miss Hruza had been at Maryvale since it opened. She could not be replaced. A memorial service for her was held September 21.

Although some departments, like Art, escaped without change, it took recalls from deep reduction in force cuts to keep them from feeling the breeze. George Reilly returned to teach crafts and ceramics.

Business brags about brand new computer center

Contrary to what was written last year the 300 building did not collapse this year when Mr. Bill Saban, long-time teacher and department chairman, retired from teaching at semester. One thing that could be said about Mr. Saban's retirement: it was not early. If that were not enough change for one department, a computer center was added as the school tried to catch up with the new technology by adding eight TRS-80s to the business curriculum. Mr. Jim Wilhoit, the department chairman taught the course. In other changes, Mr. Gerald Gemmette replaced Mr. Robert Yordani, a RIF victim, as coordinator in Distributive Education and Mr. Nestore Bartholomew reduced his work load to three classes.

A new chairman, an old retiree, three teacher changes, and a return from leave of absence marked the changes in the school's largest department: English. Miss Elenore Moberley replaced Mrs. Dorothy Thomas as chairman. Mrs. Thomas retired at the end of the 1983 year. Miss Moberley was not a stranger as has taught at Maryvale since it opened. Mr. Earl Stinson would have completed 19 years as publications adviser had he not decided to retire at semester. Mrs. Mary Beth Reed and Mrs. Karen Kittridge replaced Mrs. Nancy Wilson, who moved to California, and Mrs. Chris Connard who transferred to North. Mrs. Pamela Arnette took over Mrs. Thoma's teaching duties. Mrs. Jean Kilker returned after a year's leave of absence.

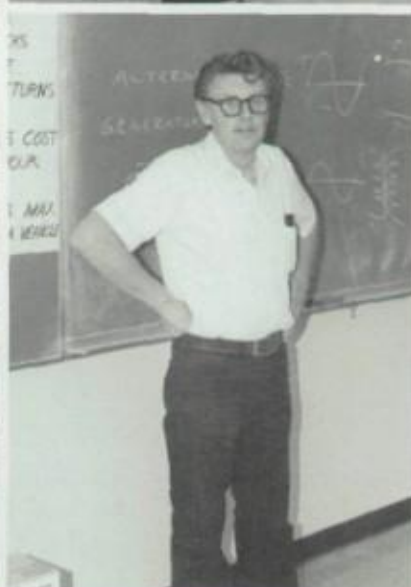

'Dead' language makes comeback as Latin returns

The return of Latin to Mr. Pete Navarte's Foreign Language Department's curriculum after being out for more than 10 years was the headline from that department. Mrs. Johanna Haver, who also taught German, brought the class back for the first time since Mr. Ted Woods left Maryvale. Mr. Edward Estrada replaced Mr. George Emmons as a Spanish teacher.

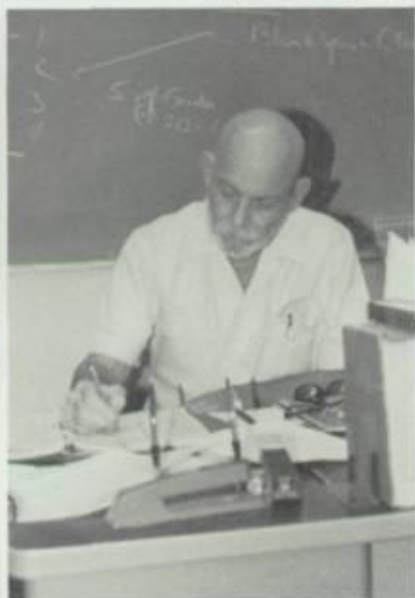

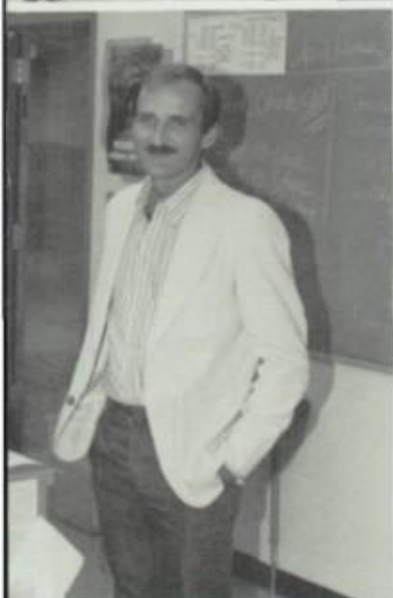

The Home Economics Department added a State Senator, a supervisor and ex-Maryvale teacher, and a new department head. Senator Lela Alston, who takes a leave of absence each spring to attend her legislative duties, came to Maryvale from West. Mrs. Madeline Minchin returned after ten years away as supervisor of district teachers. She still devoted two hours a day to that chore. Mrs. Marilyn Lavin assumed the chairman's duties.

The transfer of Mr. John Rebb to North caused Mr. Greg Whitney to become Chairman of the Industrial Arts Department. Mr. Whitney also took over the metals classes. Mr. Larry Yule, long-time Vocational Industrial Cooperative Training coordinator, retired at the semester.

Math department loses veterans Kesler, Unkrich

Two retirements and four new teachers marked the year for the Math Department. Mr. Orren Kesler left at the end of last year while Mr. Harmon Unkrich, who split his time with the science department left at semester. Mr. Kesler had been at Maryvale since it opened; Mr. Unkrich came in 1965. The four teachers who came aboard this year are Mr. Larry Claflin, Mr. John Coby, Mr. Richard Schwaab and Mrs. Marilyn Steffen

The Performing Arts Department made few changes as it added Miss Donna Fesler to teach two classes of its more and more popular dance classes. Former music Department chairman, Mr. Albert Satina, retired at semester. Mr. Satina taught guitar and math.

No one from the Physical Education and Health Department, retired, but Mr. Danny Wales said he might in four or five years. However, the department did change as veteran Maryvale teachers Miss Beverly Bostrom and Mr. Osborn Shackelford transferred to other schools and Miss Rojelie Holguin returned from leave of absence. Miss Cheryl Watkins carried her fight against chemical dependency to other schools in the district during two hours of the day. Mr. Jerry Zamboni joined the PE staff.

The Reading Department was reduced to three teachers: Mrs. Vanessa Dehne, Mrs. Sue Stanford and Mrs. Bertha Flood. In addition to her Department duties, Mrs. Dehne taught a class called English for Speakers of other Languages.

Don E. Johnson assumes control of Government

The Science Department survived the retirements of two teachers: Mr. Charlie Gilbert who taught biology at Maryvale since it opened and Mr. Harmon Unkrich who has taught advanced math and physics for many years. Mr. Gilbert retired last year, Mr. Unkrich in December. Mrs. Mary Lou Allembert, who broke her hip last year, tried to return from medical leave but her ailment forced her to leave after only a few weeks, which led to her classes having a "a teacher a day" for several weeks until Mr. Ralph Neighbors returned from Trevor Browne where he had been transferred. Mr. John Day came to teach Earth Science.

Many seniors breathed a little easier when Mr. Hal Richardson retired from the Social Studies Department. He was one of the tougher teachers of government and free enterprise, courses required for graduation. Mr. Richardson and American History Teacher Don Goodwin retired at the end of last school year. Mr. Don E. Johnson came to Maryvale from West High to teach Arizona Government and to sponsor Student Government. Miss Claire Hurlburt also joined the department.

The Junior Reserve Officers Training Corps continued to do its thing, namely, winning awards, under the direction of Major Joe Carter, and Sergeants Nick Mastrovito and Ronald Ratliff.

Counseling loses as Geiler, Drake Currier retire

The Exceptional Student Department had a fairly stable year for a change. Under the chairmanship of Miss Linda Grayhack, one of the biggest changes was in a name. Miss Debra Wendy Became Mrs. Debra Sawyer. Miss Judy Eisenberg joined the department and Mrs. Linda Lambert left on maternity leave during first semester.

Even the Instructional Materials Center was not without change. When Mr. Bill Morris was transferred to Camelback, it meant that Mrs. Barbara Goldstein came in to assume his library duties while Audio-Visual Specialist Sue Hardesty took over the department. Mrs. Ina Mae Miller rounded out the crew.

For a small department, counseling made an enormous change this year. Not only did veterans Vae Geiler and Berneil Drake retire and Mr. Al Honig transfer to Camelback, but Mr. Cliff Currier, who has been department chairman since Maryvale opened, retired at semester. Mrs. Virginia Frogge, Mrs. Shelley Johnson and Mr. Ruben Calderon came in to take up the slack.

In addition to these changes, several teachers expressed an interest in retirement. But at deadline these were the only certainties. One thing was agreed, Maryvale was a changing school especially in the departure of faculty members.

As the year neared its close the Winds of Change had declined to a mere breeze.

The gale blowing through Student Life left a 37-minute lunch period behind it, but the students became used to it, and it wouldn't be new anymore.

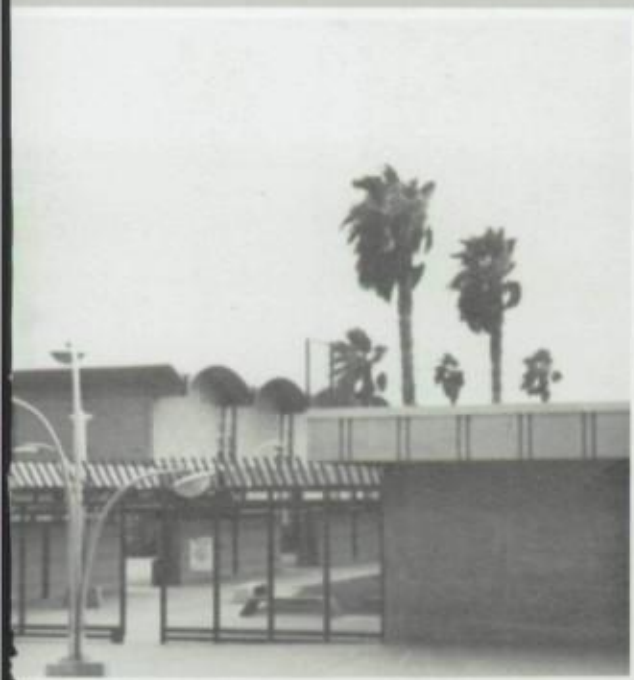

The tornado that ripped through Sports blew away our winning teams, but left teams of contenders that would have their day.

The typhoon that raged through Honors took some emphasis off individual achievements, but shed new light on group honors, like the H.A.Q. Hendrickson Award.

The tempest that ravaged Organizations left in its wake new sponsors, new policies and volunteer assemblies, but here too, the storm seems to be over.

Winds of cataclysmic proportion struck curriculum in 1984, and were still murmuring in May. Over 25 veteran faculty, staff and administration members retired under the states early retirement plan at the end of first semester. The winds blew in new people to take the reins, though, so it wasn't all bad.

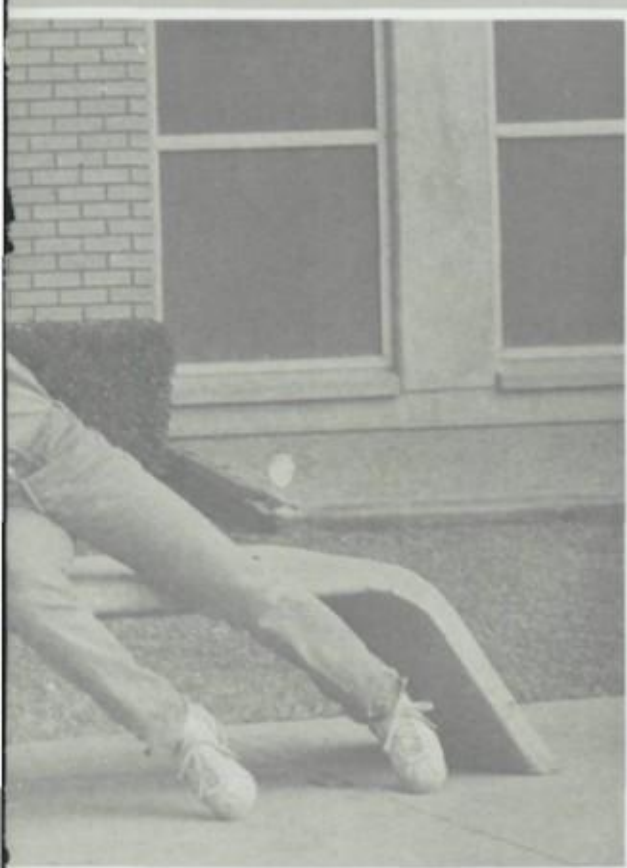

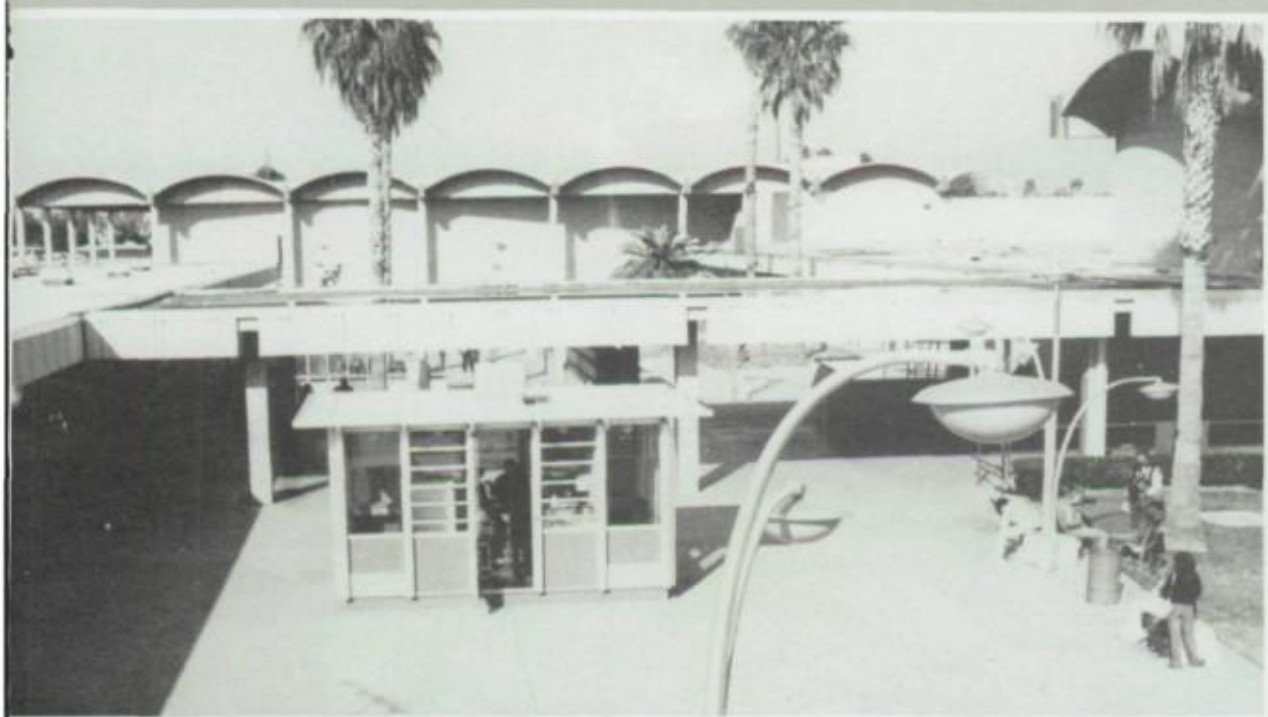

There were winds blowing through classes, but they were seasonal. Everyone was swept into a new class, and new students were swept in and old ones swept out, but that was to be expected.

The extended weather forecast for 1985 looks fair and partly cloudy, with and indeterminate chance for rain. A high pressure system is moving in from the District Offices, which could again cause high winds.

But for now, the Winds of Change have run their course through Maryvale High School. Behind them are the fun, the sad, the worst, and even the best of times. And even though the Winds of Change may never completely stop blowing at Maryval, they can be weathered.

Well I finally get to sign it!
It's about time! I'm so glad we got English together this year because if we hadn't, someone else might be my best friend and I just can't imagine life without you. God has been with us all of the year and thank him for that because if he hadn't been here, we might have not made it through all of the crazy things we've tried.
I'm really glad you're going to be staying with my family. Maybe we'll get back to Indy after all and if we do, watch out world, you're my bestest friend in the world and I love you very much. Maybe this summer we can finish good ol' Princeton! Don't worry, I'm gonna be me and nobody else but me!

may God Bless you and keep his everlasting love and care over you anywhere you go. Keep all your strength, trust, prayer, hopes, and wishes in him because someday you're gonna find out what God has in store for you!

So Natalie,

This year is over. (obviously.) And, yes, we had our share of arguments, but we came through it, still friends. I think that's terrific. I'm sure we'll have many more through the years. (unless you move.) But I'm sure ~~you~~ we'll come through it okay. You mean a lot to me, and you are very special in my life. If you move, be sure to write. Have a fantastic summer, and a great future is ahead of you. You have a lot to offer the world. May God Bless you in many ways.

Love,

This year is over and this book is out. Something I had doubts about ever happening. It was a lot of hard work, but a lot of fun. I hope everyone will enjoy reminiscing over it as much as I did putting it together. I realize it couldn't have been done without the help of dedicated staffers and good friends. I would like to give recognition to those people now.

I would especially like to thank Mr. Stinson for giving me the chance to edit this book. You have helped me in many ways and I will always remember you for it. I really appreciated it when you stayed to help when everyone else went home to dinner. You have been a true friend and a great inspiration.

Randy, I know we didn't always agree on things but we still had fun. I don't think there's anything else I can say.

Chriscus, my very own "Captain Copy." Without you this book would have been 100% pictures. I want to thank you for experiences which I will never forget (B.R. in the D.R.).

Chuck, you have really been a good friend to me. I'm glad that I got the chance to know you and work with you. Without you I may not have lived to see the completion of this book.

Chris, I want to thank you for all the work you put into this book. Even when you weren't legally on staff you printed more pictures than Fotomat.

Mark, I really don't know if I should count you as a photographer, staffer or comedian. I think comedian fits you the best. You kept me laughing through all the missed deadlines and ruined film. I really needed that.

Tom, you are in a class by yourself. I want to thank you for being a one-man year-book staff. You produced many a layout when I was in dire need.

Barbara, I couldn't have made it a day without you. For not knowing what you were doing you did a really great job. I never really gave you the title, but you were the closest thing I had to an assistant editor. Thanks for giving me a little organization in my life of chaos.

Mrs. Reed, I would like to give a special thanks to you. Not only did you have the courage to do something you've never done before but you passed that courage on to me. You did a wonderful job of picking up where Mr. Stinson left off. Thank you for all the help.

Mr. Salt, I wanted to thank you for being a terrific teacher. Yours was the only class I could really bear to face each day. You brought to your class knowledge even if it was in the form of trivia. You helped me without even realizing it. Thanks again for everything.

To all the other staffers and people who made this book possible I want to thank you. I'll remember you all for the rest of my life. I really appreciated everything you did.

I would also like to dedicate this book to Mr. Stinson who has been advisor and friend to the Publications staffs for the past 18 years. I hope his retirement is happy and restful.

Natalie,

Like Hi!!

Well, you know I can't imagine what this year would have been like without you giving me advice, helping me in drama, and most of all being my friend. You are so very special to me and I really can't think of the proper words to describe the deep love that I feel in my heart for you. We went through alot of changes this year but having each other to lean on made things easier. I can see the Lord making alot of changes in you and I see your ever growing faith in God. You have matured a great deal spiritually whether you realize it or not, and I know that he has a special plan for your life if you'll just trust him to reveal it to you. Wait on Him Natalie. People will constantly fail you, but God won't. And if there is one thing I have learned it's that His grace is sufficient. I'll miss you alot so be sure to write and keep in touch. I don't want to lose you.

Love always,
Paula
